CONGRESS GIVES THE PRESIDENT A GREAT RECEPTION

Many of Paraders Were Those Who Helped Over-Ride
The Veto

MARCH TO THE STATION

Blase Capital Never Saw Anything Just Like This Demonstration

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—The same Congress that sent President Roosevelt away from Washington two weeks ago with a smacking over his veto and which since he has been away has been rebelliously kicking over administration traces, gave him a whooping reception upon his return today which was without precedent. Approximately 150 members of the House marched from the Capital Plaza behind the red-coated Marine Band to Union Station and joined there a group of Senators, Cabinet officials, and members of the Roosevelt family, to greet the President upon his return from Florida.

Amusingly enough, the most prominent paraders were those who helped to over-ride the veto.

The blase Capital, which has seen all sorts of paraders, never saw anything just like the one that was staged this morning. Certainly no President ever was greeted upon arriving in Washington by a parade of Congressmen through the streets, headed by the resplendent United States Marine band tooting popular music. Pedestrians on their way to work stopped and stared at the unusual spectacle.

Insult Is Apparently Resigned To His Fate

Aboard the train with Samuel Insull enroute to Smyrna, Turkey, April 13.—Apparently resigned to his fate, Samuel Insull grew more and more cheerful and chatted almost gaily today as he was completing the second leg of his long journey back to Chicago to face indictment in the collapse of his vast utilities empire.

Viewing the end of his 22 months' flight from the United States philosophically, the 74-year-old former multi-millionaire even joked occasionally with the reporters accompanying him to Smyrna where tonight he was to be placed aboard the American cargo vessel Exilona and formally extradited from Turkey.

Displaying a keen mind and fine memory, Insull discussed the various world personalities with abandon, touched on general world politics and for the first time in many months, commented upon conditions in the United States, with the following up-to-the-minute commentary: "It will take more than a 'brain trust' to make the United States communistic."

After being placed aboard the steamer Exilona tonight, Insull was to be handed over by Turkish authorities to Burton Y. Berry, youthful third secretary of the American Embassy in Turkey, who has been designated to arrest the fugitive and accompany him back to the United States. Berry carried a Presidential warrant for presentation to Turkish officials.

TRY TO BREAK HUNGER STRIKE

Philadelphia, April 13.—Desperate efforts were being made today by prison authorities here to terminate the hunger strike of 19 convicts at the Holmesburg County Prison. As the hunger strike, called in protest against the food and restrictions on exercise, entered its eighth day, state prison officials were summoned to confer with Judge Harry S. McDevitt in an emergency conference to iron out the situation. The hunger strikers are known, authorities said, as trouble makers, and were sent to the county prison after plotting riots at the Eastern State Penitentiary last fall.

Sharon, April 13.—United States Senator David A. Reed, seeking re-nomination on the Republican ticket, carried his campaign into Lawrence county today after assailing several of the national administration's policies here last night. Reed is battling Governor Pinchot as his chief opponent in the primary race.

Ellis Parker To Speak At Meeting of Elks Here

Members of Bristol Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, will have as a guest speaker at their semi-monthly meeting, Monday evening, a man who is known throughout the United States as an authority on crime, and who has solved many nationally-known murder mysteries in the course of his long career as a detective.

Ellis Parker, head of the Burlington County detective force, and a member of Mt. Holly Lodge of Elks, will give some of the intimate happenings in many of the crimes he has solved in a discourse to those who attend this session.

Special arrangements have been made by the committee in charge to take care of a large gathering. A dinner in honor of Mr. Parker and a delegation from the Mt. Holly lodge, will be held at six o'clock Monday evening in the lodge grill.

Any member desiring reservations to this affair is requested to get in touch with Exalted Ruler Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., before Monday.

HOME-MAKING, HOBBIES, DISCUSSED AT ROUND-UP

150 Women Representing 16
Communities Gather
At Chalfont

HOME ECONOMICS WORK

CHALFONT, Apr. 13.—In addressing 150 women gathered for the annual Spring round-up, Miss Margaret Brown, head of the home economics extension work of Pennsylvania State College, told them "While many of us are splendid housekeepers we have often failed to make our house a home."

The women from 16 communities were assembled in the Grange Hall, here, and the meeting had been arranged by Miss Rhandena A. Armstrong, home economics representative in Bucks County.

Miss Brown told the women home is the beginning of self-government. "Our grandmothers would not have been able to gather together in a group such as this to study together. Farm women do not have to learn how to make use of leisure time, but they have to learn how to find leisure time to use," Miss Brown stated.

She urged the women to ask their children to do things because in most instances they will do them. By planning her work, and asking the children, as well as every member of the family to do his share, the average farm wife will find time.

Communities represented included Spinnerstown, Springfield, Richland, Keller's Church, Ferndale, Blooming Glen, Plumstead, Chalfont, New Britain, Doylestown, Buckingham, Solebury, Southampton, Warrington, Warminster, Ivyland, Northampton, Southampton, Wycombe, Upper Makefield, Newtown, Yardley, Lower Makefield. Three communities, Langhorne, Woodbourne and Penn's Manor, in which Miss Armstrong is carrying on home economics work were not represented.

A resume of the women's hobbies revealed that "Aunt Mary" Opydke, of Richboro, who is 96 years old, made and exhibited a slip. Other hobbies indicated by the women included flower, old coins, reading, quilting, sewing, pressure cookers and new recipes. "Aunt Mary" Opydke is also interested in flowers, annually maintaining her own garden.

At the beginning of the meeting, which got under way at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Howard Detweiler staged some games to encourage acquaintance. Group singing was led by Mrs. William Deknatel, and in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Stephen Foster, celebrated American composer, "Old Black Joe" and "My Old Kentucky Home" were sung.

Mrs. C. F. Singleton, who served as chairman, conducted a demonstration of parliamentary procedure. Mrs. Artemus Bishop introducing the action. Among the women who took part were Mrs. Frank Moll, Mrs. Alice Meyers, Mrs. Norman Kratz, Mrs. R. A. Martin, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. Charles Try, Mrs. Walter Gross and Mrs. Alfred Reading.

Reading an original paper on "The Homemaker and Her Job," Mrs. Singleton explained that a home should not be too fine to be enjoyed. A real home maker tries to make her home a place where she can find comfort. Mrs. Alice Meyers, reading another paper on the same subject, emphasized the fact that the home-maker must manage the family income.

A humorous reading "How Uncle Podger Hangs a Picture" was given by Mrs. Howard Detweiler, and Mrs. Irvin L. MacNair sang two solos, "Thank God for a Garden" and "Come to the Fair." She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Mildred Bruner.

A luncheon of delicious sandwiches, including deviled eggs and fruit, was served by Mrs. Alice Meyers, Mrs. Russell Cadwallader, Mrs. Singleton, Mrs. Frank Moll, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Howard K. Garges, members of a refreshment committee.

During the afternoon session a group of women from Ivyland and Richboro staged a "live model" fashion show under the direction of Miss

PORTSMOUTH, O., HOPES TO BE GREAT LAKE PORT

Is Terminus of One of The
Two All-Ohio Canals Now
Under Consideration

IS A FINE LOCATION

(Note: This is the ninth of a series of articles concerning the canal routes now under consideration in Pennsylvania and Ohio.)

By James C. Kinkaid
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PORTSMOUTH, O. Apr. 13.—(INS)—Terminus of one of the two all-Ohio canals now under consideration by the Federal government, this city looks forward to the day that it may become a port on the Great Lakes.

Its location, at the mouth of Scioto River, makes it an ideal base for canal operations, according to proponents of the proposal. Therefore, they claim, the Portsmouth-Sandusky route should be selected as the site of the canal linking the Ohio River with Lake Erie.

The total length of the waterway would be approximately 240 miles. From the rise to the summit level there is 417 feet and from Lake Erie to the summit level the height is 327½ feet, a net lift for navigation of 744½ feet.

The canal would travel through Waverly, Chillicothe, Circleville, Columbus, Tiffin, and Fremont and terminate at Sandusky Harbor. It would be necessary to construct 32 locks and dams, each of which would have an average lift of 23.25 feet. The

TODAY, FRIDAY THE 13TH

(By "The Stroller")

Look out!

Today is Friday, the 13th.

But all the bad luck is not always confined to Friday the 13th. A lot of Bristol people today were seen stepping around ladders and going about the streets with their fingers crossed.

But why?

A survey of the files of the Department of Labor and Industry at Harrisburg, show that other days than Friday the 13th, are unlucky.

Take for instance the case of a Pittsburgh man who repaired a furnace in a house while the tenants were away. He was warned by the occupants of the house to be sure that the cat didn't get out. His work was done and when about to leave, the cat—a black one by the way—made an attempt to get out the door. He grabbed for the cat, and Tabby made a pass at the man and clawed him badly.

There's another side to this luck business, too. Possession of money is considered good fortune, but the files tell a story of a man who had so much of it that he was disabled from carrying it around. This man, also of Western Pennsylvania, lifted a box of coins and strained his back. He was engaged in the transportation business and handled the money in the course of shipment.

A Philadelphia policeman had many close calls while on duty Friday, the thirteenth, but came through unscathed. At home, however, his luck changed. His wife during the course of an argument at the evening meal, picked up a meat platter from the table and struck him over the head, ending his bandit-chasing career for some time. Inasmuch as the officer is subject to call twenty-four hours a day, he seeks compensation from his employer, the city.

The cast is composed of the following: Arthur Angelaccio, Frank Deon, Angelo Di Renzo, Vincent Galzerano, Leonard Monaco, John Pagliano, Richard Sabatini, Frank Spezzano, Edward Fosti, Helen Morganti, Marya Quaresmini, Adeline Rocco, Laura Sagolia, Mary and Frances Tamburello. All money received from the presentation of this farce will go to help St. Ann's Catholic Church which is in dire need of financial aid. The promoters hope the public will patronize it and give it all the aid possible, especially the Italians. Their support is solicited not as charity but as proof of racial solidarity and in recognition of merit, say the promoters.

Campaign Under Way To Reorganize Golf Club

A campaign is under way to reorganize the Holmesburg Golf Club from a semi-public to a private club with all club privileges restricted to the club members. This change will become effective on attainment of a membership goal of 425 to 450 members. According to Alfred J. Laupheimer, president and general manager of the club, the dues are only 50% of the dues as charged by other similar clubs, which are privately organized.

One hundred and forty new members have been secured during the last three weeks and the organization of about 110 volunteer canvassers are enthusiastic about the prospect for securing the balance of new members during the coming two or three weeks.

The volunteer workers meet every Tuesday night for dinner, at 6:30 o'clock as the guests of the club. Not only campaign workers, but new members and persons interested in the possibility of becoming members, are invited to attend these complimentary dinners.

HONORABLE JOHN McSPARREN SPEAKS TO W. C. T. U. WOMEN

Takes Up Various Angles of the Political Situation at Newtown Conference

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Women of the Southeastern Group Adopt Important
Resolutions

(By Staff Correspondent)

NEWTOWN, Apr. 13.—The Honorable John A. McSparren, candidate on both the Republican and Democratic tickets for Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, honored with his presence yesterday the women convened for the New Crusade Regional Conference of the Southeastern Group, Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Union, here. The visit was paid at the morning meeting in the Presbyterian Church yesterday, the closing day of the two-day conference. The Honorable Mr. McSparren, a most welcome but unexpected guest, took up various angles of the political situation in the nation and in this state. He made a plea for clean government, and complimented the W. C. T. U. on its tireless activities toward that end. Mr. McSparren, an avowed dry, told briefly of his attitude on problems that face the people of the state.

Among the resolutions adopted by the body at the afternoon meeting which closed the conference was one "that this conference go on record approving the recommendation of our state president (Mrs. Ella B. Back), in reference to the candidacy of the Honorable John A. McSparren as governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Some of the other outstanding resolutions adopted by the W. C. T. U. workers were: "That we as citizens register our protest against our state being in the liquor business; that our secretary write the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee at Washington asking that they outlaw the 'block' or 'blind' booking, and that we ask for federal supervision of movies before production; that we recommend as long as we have a secretary of war in our President's cabinet that we favor a secretary of peace; that we stress the privilege and opportunity of Christian citizenship; that we promote an intensive educational program suited to different age groups in that the citizens and future citizens may know the truth about the effects of alcohol on the human body and the corrupting influence of the traffic; that we earnestly endeavor to strengthen our organization by an increased membership."

In line with the resolution relative to motion picture bookings was the speech of Mrs. Mabel D. Pennock, Lansdowne, president of the Group, and also of the W. C. T. U. department of motion pictures, subject, "Motion Pictures—What are we doing about them?" She informed that 78 per cent of the feature pictures are showing drinking scenes, and that one picture in seven deals with sex problems; likewise that 20 million people in the nation visit the "movies" once a week and that about half of these are less than 14 years of age. "These boys and girls who are growing up are getting the idea from motion picture scenes that drinking and other harmful things are alright." She branded as unwise the endorsement of certain pictures by the W. C. T. U., citing cases where organizations' representatives had done such after pictures had been cut, and later found that harmful parts had been restored, the picture being shown in its entirety with the endorsement of the individuals who had not seen the undesirable portions. "If pictures were made right in the first place we could do away with censorship." The influence of motion pictures on modern life was referred to, "and we're all susceptible to influence."

Election of officers took place during the morning, those named being: president, Mrs. Jennie Butz, Northampton County; vice-president, Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, Montgomery County; secretary, Mrs. Louella Nolan, Chester County; treasurer, Miss Virginia V. Delbier, Lehigh County; associate vice-presidents (presidents of county unions who do not hold other offices in the group)—Mrs. Lucy A. Harper, Bucks County; Mrs. Katherine Sampson, Berks; Mrs. G. W. Dungan, Carbon County; Mrs. Mabel D. Pennock, Delaware County; Mrs. Edith Reed, Schuylkill County; Mrs. Vernon Hastings, Philadelphia; Mrs. M. M. Horlacker, Lehigh County. The treasurer was the only individual holding an elective office who was rechosen.

Round table on activities of the W. C. T. U. was conducted during the morning by Mrs. Sylvia Ripley Bemis, field worker of the state organization; a vocal solo was given by Mrs. Robert Stapler; and Mrs. Lillian N. Trezise, vice-president of the state, conducted noonday prayer. The Rev. Lewis Sasse, rector of St. Luke's P. E. Church, had the morning devotions; and the Rev. Carl Hammerly, pastor of the Newtown Methodist Church, conducted such during the afternoon.

Another feature of the final meeting

FRIDAY, APRIL 13, 1934

VISUAL EVIDENCE

If more such demonstrations were given as were presented Wednesday and Friday evenings at the high school auditorium, there would be less carping criticism of the Bristol public schools.

The dramatization of what are termed extra curricula activities reflected credit upon not only those who participated but spoke well of the system, which provides for such training.

The so-called "folderolls" have an educational value which it is difficult to compute unless it is shown, as it was on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, in a visual manner which is without doubt the quickest way to educate those who are uninformed upon any particular topic.

It is a shame that twice as many people did not witness the affair. It was ably presented, interestingly portrayed and undoubtedly impressed upon the audiences the value of the work, which has been carried on in the schools here.

It is with deep regret that such subjects as art, music, domestic science and home economics are to be cut from the curriculum of the Bristol schools. May these eliminations be not for long.

COSTS OF SUPPRESSION

The costs of the Administration's cotton suppression program are explained by Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware:

"America produces about 54 percent of the world's supply of cotton. We consume in this country about 40 percent of the American production. Our consumption therefore amounts to 21.6 of the total production. We export 32.4 per cent of the total production, and the balance of 40 percent is produced in other countries. Last year 10,000,000 acres were removed from production by means of contracts under the A. A. A. at a cost to American citizens of $100,000,000. This year 17.5 per cent to remove 15,000,000 acres, or 40 per cent, from production at an estimated cost of $135,000,000. This reduction in acreage last year was not effective and the amount produced was about the same as produced the previous year, namely 13,000,000 bales. It is now proposed to put a prohibitive tax on all cotton produced in excess of 10,000,000 bales. For this the American consumer is taxed."

Vermont Hen Lays Half-pound Egg—headline, Ouch!

We don't know whether to get out the garden spade or to place the snow shovel in a handy position.

The famous surgeon who promises us a longer life-span probably thinks we will need it if we are to be here when prosperity comes back.

The world grows better. We no longer have to weep because poor Armenian loan sharks are "persecuted" by their Turkish victims.

News reports says that a mad man broke into a California radio studio and attacked a singing broadcaster with a knife. But how do they know he was crazy?

That western man who sued his wife because she hadn't spoken to him in five years seems to be in that class of persons who don't know when they are well off.

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

SYNOPSIS

Aboard the S.S. "Navarre," bound for New York, Michael Lanyard, reformed "Lone Wolf" and underworld celebrity, is reunited with his son whom he thought dead. The boy, Maurice Parry, has followed in the "Lone Wolf's" footsteps, but Lanyard hopes his son's interest in Fenno Crozier, lovely daughter of the wealthy Mrs. Fay Crozier, will prove a good influence. Maurice steals Mrs. Crozier's Haberg emeralds. Lanyard retrieves them for Fay. Detective Crane warns Lanyard to watch out for the vengeance of "Jack Knife" Anderson and "English Archie," two gunmen whom Lanyard exposed for cheating Maurice at cards. Shortly afterwards, the gangsters kill Mrs. Crozier's emeralds and plant them in Lanyard's cabin. Maurice saves his father by substituting imitations and secretly placing the emeralds in the purser's care for Fay. Notwithstanding Lanyard's innocence, Detective Plon is suspicious of him. Later, when one of "Jack Knife's" accomplices tries to intimidate Lanyard into stealing the emeralds and splitting fifty-fifty with the gang, Maurice appears on the scene, masked. He knocks the gangster unconscious, planting a string of pearls stolen from the notorious gold-digger, Tess Boyce, in the thief's pocket. Tess, in gratitude to Maurice for catching the thief, gives a dinner in his honor. Lanyard disapproves of the society of Tess Boyce for his son, but Fenno asks him to leave Maurice to her. Discussing the Boyce robbery, Plon informs Lanyard that the prisoner swore Lanyard and Maurice planted the necklace on him. Later, Lanyard meets Tess and admires her courage in wearing her diamonds after last night's robbery, suggesting it might be safer to leave them with the purser. "Too much bother," Tess replies.

CHAPTER XXI

She broke off her statement to sign a denial to Maurice, who was waiting to ask her to dance. "No, thanks, nice thing. I'd rather stay here and make up to your old man. Grab yourself an armful of Estelle there, and give it a whirl instead."

"There's no accounting for tastes, of course." The boy sketched an impish salute. "The loss, madame, is yours."

"Great kid," Tess Boyce drawled, watching him lead the other young woman away to the music, "and one dream of a dancer, if I'm any judge. Look how light he is on his dogs."

Funny thing about last night," she harked back. "I wasn't asleep, really just dozing, and all of a sudden I had a sort of feeling there was somebody else in the room, if you know what I mean, and I opened my eyes, and there was. He was stooping over my dressing table, where I'd left a lot of this junk—too tired to put it away. Honest! I couldn't believe my eyes—it seemed so cheeky, I thought I must be dreaming. Only for a moment, though—only till he switched off the night-light. He must've sensed I'd waked up. I guess, though I hadn't stirred a finger or breathed hard or anything, because he didn't stop a second—just blacked that light out and took it on the lam. And then I cut loose."

"You were able to identify the prisoner, then?"
The eyes that widened to Lanyard's were almost too guileless.

"If they hadn't caught him with the goods on, I'd never've believed it was the same fellow."

"I see, he darkened the room too quickly."

"Not so quick that I didn't get a snapshot of a man a head taller, anyway than the yegg you and your son helped pinch. Putting out the night-light didn't make such a difference, you see—it was so dim and the moon so bright. I could see him like a silhouette, if you know what I mean, between me and the windows, as he dived for the door. I'd never have believed the gorilla I found my pearls on could have moved like that—silent as a shadow, sure-footed as a cat, and graceful! I couldn't think of a thing but a panther."

"Yes," Lanyard nodded, without finching from the stare of those wonder-struck eyes. "Only a few minutes ago, oddly enough, M. Plon and I were enacting the unreliability of eyewitnesses, how excitement invariably colors and distorts the evidence of our senses at critical moments."

"Wouldn't it slay you? Why, if it hadn't turned out the way it did, if they'd left it to me to pick out the burglar out of a line-up of passengers, I'd have bet my left leg it was that hopeful of yours, just going on the way he walks."

"Then he is fortunate indeed."
"I see what you mean." The woman of a sudden glowered her show of naïveté the wide eyes narrowed and gave out wicked glimmers, the wide mouth went into its

"Figure to yourself that I have every confidence in you. Make yourself at ease, my friend, and when the spirit moves you, more lucid."

"I only want to know what you know, if anything." Crane draped himself on the foot of the bed and tamped his pipe with a vague air which Lanyard took to screen keen observation. "About this kid of yours and the Boyce outfit: What's the idea of all this fuss they're makin' over him?"

"But you already know, I am sure, about the service Maurice did Madame—"

"Yeah, I heard about it. I'm just

"If they hadn't caught him with the goods on, I'd never've believed it was the same fellow," said Boyce.

wickedest twist, "Because he's the Lone Wolf's son."
"I'm afraid that would have counted against him, had Fate left it to you to identify the thief."
"Sure would. He just don't know his luck. I'm pretty easy-going, monsieur, if you know what I mean; but if I hadn't got that rope back! Why, they're just everything I've got to remember my last husband by, those pearls, and some fancy black-and-blue spots that are almost faded out already."

The thin ascetic lips of Mr. Isquith, a taciturn third party to the talk, writhed in mild anguish; and the Boyce, marking this, gave way to gusty mirth.

Lanyard seized the first excuse he could, with good grace, to withdraw his person as well as his mind from the party. And as soon as he was out of sight, Isquith leaned his prim mouth to the Boyce's ears.

"Nice work, kid," he breathed, "very, very pretty! The way you got the wind up the old fox was a treat. Keep it up, now that's a good girl, don't let him forget a minute he's sitting on a powder-barrel and monkeying with matches; play him off against the punk—and we've got 'em where we want 'em. And his whole right in the hollows of our little hot hands."

Smart knuckles on his stateroom door hailed Lanyard back, hours later, from the far horizon where waking consciousness dips under Full-witted in a twinkling, he made a light, then sensibly demanded through the panels to know what was wanted. No name passed in response, but the nasal deliberation of the voice outside sounded authentic. With no more hesitation he drew the bolt. A grin of apology wreathed the pipe in Crane's teeth as he entered.

a back number, of course, and nobody ever tells me anything."

"But you have been invisible all day—busy with your own affairs, presumably; one has had no chance for a chat with you."

"O. K. But it's hard to forget old habits. I can't seem to break myself of pickin' up pieces that people leave about, careless-like, and fittin' them together. I've got a pretty good idea of what happened in here last night. Every time I think about it," Crane with iron gravity professed, "I bust right out laughin'!"

"Laughing?"
"At the idea of a lad barely out of his teens tackling a tough egg like Eddie the Frog, knockin' him for a goal and fishin' a mess of stolen pearls out of his poke."

"To be accurate, it was that good Plon who found them."

"It would have been," Crane with ambiguous readiness agreed. "He had to do something, naturally, to cop himself a piece of the hottest. These French dicks are the hottest ever, to hear them tell it—it wouldn't have looked right to let an amateur up and pry him right out of the picture."

"You do not like M. Plon, I take it?"

"I don't think as much of him as he does, that's a fact. And what he thinks of me is nobody's business."

"You are—if the question is not indiscreet—professionally at odds, then?"

"It isn't that, so much," Crane said with an utterly open face, "as that he'd thank me to 'tend to my own knittin'." That ruckus last night wouldn't have come off if he hadn't been up-stage with me. I tried to wise him that Jack-knife and English Archie probably had heeled planted somewhere on board, but he wouldn't listen. That sort of thing was likely enough, he admitted, on an American ship or maybe a British; but—dirty work on decks that were legally the same as the sacred soil of that dear France? 'Monshoo Le a-may-ray-caine was pleased to be comical!"

navigable distance between locks in this canal would be about seven and one-half miles, the highest average of any of the four routes thus far proposed.

Nineteen of the locks would be located on the Ohio River watershed and 13 on the slope to Lake Erie. Their lifts would range from seven feet to 37½ feet. Studies are now under way to learn whether the height of some of these lifts can be increased in order to reduce the number of locks, thereby shortening the time of passage through the canal.

A recent examination by Federal engineers disclosed there are at present 108 bridges crossing the canal route. Practically all of these would require either radical alterations or complete reconstruction in order to provide necessary clearances.

The water supply for this canal would be adequate for navigation needs of double locks at the summit level during the dry seasons through two large reservoirs connected to the canal, with allowance for a draw-down of 10 feet. These reservoirs would be formed by two dams, one across the Scioto River at Bellepoint and the other across the Sandusky at Little Sandusky.

There are two water supply dams across the Scioto River above Columbus built for the purpose of supplying that city with water. It is proposed to utilize both of these pools, building the necessary locks without materially modifying the dams.

On the northern slope, just south of Fremont, there is a hydraulic power plant and a substantial fixed dam. This pool is also incorporated in the system and the lift and location of other locks have been made to conform thereto.

Twenty-seven dams will be included in the project. Three are already provided as described above. Five of these dams will serve two locks each. Fifteen of the dams will be movable, and of the bridge type and twelve will be fixed. Of the latter, two will be provided with flood gates.

(The next article deals with the Cincinnati-Toledo canal.)

ENSEMBLE OF BEIGE WOOL MAKES A FINE SPORTS COSTUME

By Nadia De Beand
(N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS — (INS) — Interest at present centers on all equine events, for this week witnessed the opening of the annual Horse Show, in which about $45,000 are distributed in prizes to army equestrians as well as amateurs of both sexes.

I saw at the opening the Princess de Faucigny-Lucinge, well-known owner of an excellent stable, in a smart Worth ensemble of beige wool. What distinguished it was the little cape trimmed with two rows of lynx, crossing front, and in the back, the lower row dropping to the waistline, while the other dropped into a sort of monk's hood effect.

was "Object Lessons for Children," by Mrs. Mabel R. Gilbert, expert in Loyal Temperance Legion work, and president of Burlington County, N. J. Union. In training the children to be good citizens and especially to guard against use of alcohol as a beverage, Mrs. Gilbert said: "We must be one step ahead of the children all the time we are training them." She continued by showing what colorful and forceful object lessons might be used in impressing on the young minds the harmful influence of alcoholic beverages. She showed how to apply to the child's mind scientific facts backed by physicians, and given in story form. "Won't you go home and resolve to do something for your Sunday School class, your L. T. L. group, children in your neighborhood, or others in this line of work? Don't wait until you hear the wail of the child, 'I'm lost!'"

DOYLESTOWN TO PLAY
BRISTOL HIGH HERE

(By Jack Orr)

Following the successful opening of their baseball season on Tuesday, the Bristol High "Bunnies" turned to their next opponent, Doylestown High. This game will be played here today.

Coach Beshel of Doylestown with a lineup full of football stars expects his club to come through in their initial fray of the campaign.

Captain Gene Brickelmyer, football fullback, is the most dangerous Doylestown hitter, but the other grid-iron players, namely, Bodley, Whitenack and Fellman, are not far behind. "Lefty" Pretz, a regular of last year's squad, will most likely pitch for the county seat team, while "Mose" Fry or "Mel" Wright are possible twirlers for the "Bunnies."

This is the first home game for the Red and Gray team, and a great crowd is expected. First pitch, 3:30 sharp.

Probable line-up:
Bristol Doylestown
Oppman 3b Power 2b
Berry 1f Peguette ss
Rockhill ss Bodley 1f
Hibbs 1f Brickelmyer c
Dick 1b Whitnack 1b
Spencer 1f Ament 1f

TELLS COUNTY SCHOOL
DIRECTORS OF FUNCTIONS

"To Do All Good They Can for All Boys and Girls as Often as They Can"

SHAMBACH IS SPEAKER

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 13.—Speaking to nearly 200 Bucks county school directors in the Court House, in session here on Tuesday afternoon, J. Y. Shambach, child accounting expert and statistician, of the Department of Public Instruction, declared that the main function of the school directors is to do all the good they can for all the boys and girls, as often as they can, and not expect too many people to pat them on the back. "If a school director is complimented for one-tenth of all he does that is about all he can expect."

Concerning retrenchments, he pointed out there has been a reduction of 940 teachers from the various school districts in Pennsylvania. There are 34 districts in the State in which there are no schools and teachers. In one district there are eight pupils and a school board of five members to look after their needs. In 115 districts there is one teacher; 163 districts, 2 teachers; 141 districts, 3 teachers; 174 districts, 4 teachers. In 630 school districts there are 4 teachers per pupil, while in another district of the fourth class there is one director for every two teachers.

Mr. Shambach also explained that of the 600 districts seeking aid, most of them were smaller districts and in many instances one-teacher schools. Emphasizing the fact that school directors should also be good business men, the speaker stated every school district ought to be large enough to employ a secretary who is in a position to keep the records and books in the proper shape and on a business-like scheme.

Describing the actual cost of instruction in the State, Mr. Shambach declared that 78 cents of every dollar is spent for instruction in a first class district; 76 cents in a second class district; 73 cents in a third class district, and 72.5 cents of every dollar is spent for instruction in the fourth class districts.

To collect the taxes in a first class district it costs 19 cents per $100, and in the fourth class district it costs $3.10 per $100, he stated.

Mr. Shambach urged the school directors not to forsake the "3 R's" of the old school because they are still vital and fundamental, but in addition to restore and reconstruct the educational program so that every child will have a chance to obtain foundational training and instruction necessary to social and civic competence. The other two "r's" were reorganize school district lines and revise our system of school support.

According to Mr. Shambach, there are 32,000 children in school districts that have not paid their high school tuition up-to-date. Of the 2584 school districts, there are 1400 which do not have high schools.

With reference to revamping the tax system for Pennsylvania, Governor Pinchot has recommended a graduated income tax.

Election of officers, which was a feature of the afternoon session, was as follows: President, Horace E. Thorn, of Lower Merion; first vice president, William H. Mood, of Perkasie; second vice president, Ezra Miller, of Newtown; secretary, Mrs. Mabel B. Varian, of Langhorne; treasurer, Walter M. Carwithen, of Doylestown.

Four directors, two of whom were women, who attended a meeting of the State School Directors' Association in Harrisburg, and gave reports, were Mrs. Marion H. Davis, of Richboro; Mrs. Alice Kirson, of Hollings; Ezra Miller, of Newtown; and William H. Mood, of Perkasie.

Mrs. Kirson, who served as the secretary for the association the past year, told the group how she attended a dinner meeting of the school directors of the county at which the speakers were Dr. Carmon Ross, who stressed the importance of lower taxes on real estate; Assistant County Superintendent Charles H. Boehm, who encouraged school health work, and County Superintendent J. H. Hoffman.

The necessity for lowering taxes on real estate was also stressed by Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, who attended the session. John Phillips, of the American Federation of Labor, addressed the school directors to secure the best possible teachers because the teacher is the school.

Mrs. Kirson pointed out that they were urged to purchase, or at least order, their school supplies as early as possible.

Another delegate, Ezra Miller, spoke briefly of the message of Dr. Henry H. Crane pastor of the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal Church, who addressed the directors on the "Five Lamps of Education."

Dr. Crane, who has appeared before County Seat audiences several times, was a guest speaker at a recent meeting of the county teachers.

William H. Mood, who was the last delegate to submit his report, told of hearing Franklin Spencer Edmonds describe as the three essential pedestals of the nation: the home, church and school. The object of the school is the welfare of the child and not to create jobs for teachers.

After being given a rousing ovation by the 182 Bucks county school directors who elected him County Superintendent, J. H. Hoffman said:

"I have for the past years tried to do what I considered best for the children of Bucks county."

"The coming years will be serious because consolidation is in the air, but my policy will be to respect and work in the interests of the people at home who must pay the bill."

He spoke of doing away with 21 school districts as proposed by the State.

"I am going to discuss with these districts in a round table conference the situation as to their wishes and interests."

The Wonder Horse Returns

By BURNLEY

EQUIPOISE,
C.V. WHITNEY'S
FAMED 6-YEAR-OLD
IS DUE TO MAKE A COMEBACK
SHORTLY---

"ECKIE" HAS RECOVERED
FROM HIS FOOT INJURY,
AND WILL TRY TO PASS
SUN BEAU'S MONEY WINNING
RECORD THIS YEAR.

It won't be long now before the wonder horse of modern times, Equipoise, will go to the post again after a layoff of more than six months, due to an injured hoof sustained last fall. The famous six-year-old son of Pennant-Swinger appears to have completely recovered from this foot ailment, and at the present writing is scheduled to make his 1934 bow at Havre de Grace late this month.

C. V. Whitney's celebrated thoroughbred has a most ambitious schedule mapped out for him this summer and if his ailing hoof holds up he is likely to become the top money winner of all time before next fall rolls around.

Equipoise has started forty-three times in his career, winning twenty-six victories, with eight seconds and three thirds. His total earnings so far amount to $322,970—just $59,774 behind the all-time money-winning mark of Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau. Tom Healy, "Eckie's" capable trainer, has definitely predicted that his famous charge will pass Sun Beau's record during the coming campaign.

Healy has revealed the surprising fact that Equipoise was suffering from a "blind quarter" crack when he won the Arlington Handicap at Chicago last July. The fact that "Eckie" was able to shoulder 135 pounds and run a mile and a quarter in the fine time of 2:02 3/5, under such conditions, is enough to show the remarkable courage of this lion-hearted equine star.

According to Healy, Equipoise has wintered well in Kentucky, and is rapidly rounding into his best condition. If the great Whitney six-year-old shows well at Havre de Grace, he will be shipped to New York to be prepared for his many engagements at Belmont Park.

Mr. C. V. Whitney is very anxious to have his champion in tip-top shape to defend his title honors in the rich classics at Belmont, and Trainer Healy is leaving no stone unturned in his efforts to bring Equipoise back into the pink of condition.

A fashion Show
Arranged For You

WE MUST be in fashion today.

Fashion reaches even into our thoughts and speech, into our every activity, into almost every incidental of our present-day background. Though elusive and constantly changing, we must be familiar with this force — if we are to hold our places as active members of a modern community.

To speak of young girls as flappers is to date ourselves as immediately post-war. Plush and mohairs would stamp the past on our home furnishings. And antiquated household appliances would continue to submerge us in drudgery distinctly unfashionable.

There is no better parade of fashion than that which is presented to you daily in the pages of this newspaper. Through the advertisements, leading merchants and manufacturers are telling you about fashions in living.

Hats and shoes now being worn, the better kind of household conveniences, the best values in foods, decorations, furnishings — each advertisement contains sincere and truthful news of the latest offerings of the stores. With the advertisements you can keep abreast of the times. You will find that it pays you to read them every day.
